LINN Energy
Keeping in Touch with Mark Ellis
Video Update

April 4, 2013

Mark Ellis: Hi. I'm Mark Ellis, your CEO. Thanks for taking the time today to watch this short video.

Now, let me transition to 2013. Late in 2012 though, we IPO LinnCo, which is the largest single IPO of an E&P company ever done, and it sets us up for future growth. It is truly a game changer for our organization. And believe it or not, within three months of that IPO, we actually came out and utilized that IPO in a transaction and we're using it as the currency for our transaction with Berry Petroleum.

Now, as you know, we focus on buying assets that are mature, long life, repeatable, predictable performance and also having some upside potential that's very low-risk in nature. When I look at Berry, it's exactly all those things – outstanding properties, tremendous position in California, it's going to dramatically change our landscape out there. And the one thing that really comes about with this transaction is access to a highly talented workforce that's done a fabulous job managing those assets. And we really look forward to bringing them into the LINN organization.

So, as we go through the course of the next four months and transition into getting our proxy approval and closing that transaction, we'll have a chance to interface with a number of their employees and welcome them into our culture.

For instance, just the day after the announcement of the transaction, I had the opportunity to meet with about two-thirds of their workforce, and they seem very engaged in wanting to learn more about LINN Energy, wanting to be a part of a winning team, a dynamic organization, and I think they're excited about the opportunities that we bring forward from a LINN Energy standpoint.

So, we're already with that transaction being a $4.3 billion transaction, we've already exceeded what we did last year at 3 billion, or 2.9 billion, which is quite remarkable given we're not even through our first quarter this year.

In addition to Berry, we obviously have a very large operating program that we have to deliver on as well in 2013, but I know our organization is up for that challenge.

So again, thank you so much for an outstanding 2012 and we're really looking forward to outstanding performance in 2013.
